the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class. The Aldins'is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The peasessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes, for ten times its cost; and then, there is the chromo, besides!

The national feature of The Aldine must be taken in an analysis.

taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmo-politan. While The Aldine is a strictly Ameri-ran institution, it does not confine itself to the ran institution, it does not confine itself to the perpendiction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative artissts, one that will discriminate on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, white pleading before the patrons of The Aldine, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign supress.

of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interspersion of landscape, marine, figure and animal subjects, sustain an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of The Aldine is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.
